ABSTRACT

An attempt is made to analyse ecology as a philosophical problem, as a holistic phenomenon, that is, to analyse ecology in the boarder possible context, since philosophy is the only form of social consciousness which is directed at all-embracing cognition and understanding of the world. And the process of understanding of any essence, including ecology, is directe, first of all, at achieving the conceptual unity and congruity of facts and phenomena belonging to different and even polar aspects of the Universe. The philoshophical foundation of the concept of the ecology of wholeness is laid.
